This means the US SolarWinds product is 💯 compromised across the USG. Likely China w/ back doors to every dept, agency & activity in the USG. Not good.
@realDonaldTrump this is a grave nat'l scty threat, esp at this moment. Demand answers ASAP! Know you will.

Digitally, maybe. If it's proven beyond a shadow of a doubt that all American internet infrastructure is compromised (protip: it is) that essentially puts us in an unironic state of war.

We need to talk about the path of least resistance. It's what most people prefer; it's how most people live their lives. So it's time to ask: Should governments not also follow the path of least resistance?

In this case it would be allowing the slow takeover of the US by China. Or maybe it would be really quick now that everyone knows about it. Either way, fighting it seems just such a big hassle and I've got quite a bit left in my Netflix queue.

Is Biden a Chinese puppet? Yes. Should we care? A much more complicated question. Good morning, Sunday morning.

In the last centuries of the Roman Empire, the Germanic Franks occupied what is now France and left behind a substantial linguistic legacy, including what became medieval French mareschal. Mareschal came from a Frankish compound noun corresponding to Old High German marahscal, composed of marah, "horse" (Old English mearh, with a feminine form mere, whence English mare), and scalc, "servant" (Old English scealc). The original "marshal" was a servant in charge of horses, but by the time the word was borrowed from French into English in the 14th century it referred primarily to a high royal official.
